Birch Food Supplement, promotes the body's purifying functions.

DESCRIPTION

The famous charcoal is obtained from the light and non-resinous wood of the birch tree, after appropriate calcination. Birch has diuretic, antiseptic, astringent, febrifuge and antigout properties; it lowers blood cholesterol.

This plant contains various active ingredients: flavonoids (2-3%) such as quercetin, hyperoside, rutin, esperatine, betuletol; an essential oil containing anti-inflammatories such as methyl salicylate; and tannins.

The parts of the plant used are the leaves and buds.

Birch also produces lymph, known as birch lymph. The plant can be useful as an adjuvant in diffuse edema, gout, albuminuria, predisposition to kidney stones, water retention, kidney failure, dermatitis and inflammatory rheumatism.

Ingredients: Water, alcohol, Birch (Betula pubescens Ehrh.) leaves and buds 20%, honey.
