DESCRIPTION

A widespread plant in the temperate zones of the northern hemisphere, horsetail contains more than 10% of mineral components, of which almost two thirds are represented by silicic acid in the form of water-soluble silicates. Other components are flavonoids (quercetin and kempferol glucosides), traces of alkaloids, carboxylic acids (equisetolic acid), calcium, potassium and magnesium. It has diuretic, haemostatic, demineralising and anti-inflammatory properties. The plant, when used in its entirety, can be useful as an adjuvant in gout, epistaxis, decalcification, nephritis, cystitis, renal failure, dropsy, metrorrhagia, demineralisation, osteoporosis, arteriosclerosis and fractures.

Ingredients: Water, alcohol, Horsetail (Equisetum arvense L.) sterile stems 20%, honey.
