DESCRIPTION

This plant, native to California and Mexico, which prefers coastal dunes and arid valleys near the sea, is rich in alkaloids, with a greater abundance of pavines, typical of the Eschscholtzia variety, such as escolcina and californidina.

Then we have protopine, cryptopine and some aporphines; alkaloids that act on the central nervous system as sedatives and soporifics. In the mother tincture, however, the levels of alkaloids never become toxic. Some alkaloids, in a different way, have been shown to be cholecystokinetic and diuretic.

Ingredients: Water, alcohol, Eschscholtzia (Eschscholtzia californica Cham.) whole plant 20%, honey.
