DESCRIPTION

The discovery of the passionflower as we know it today is due to monks, botanists and medical experts towards the end of the Middle Ages, when from the “new world” the navigators brought back a miraculous plant, used by the Indians as a sedative.

Passionflower can be used without side effects, as a form of care.

The combination with hawthorn, scolcia and eleutherococcus reinforces the relaxing effect of passionflower.

Among its phytochemical constituents we find sweet alkaloids (armano, armolo, armina, armaldo), flavonoids (vitexina, isovitexina, hiperoxida, saponaria, aricutina), essential oil, curarinas, tannins and sterols. It has antispasmodic and sedative action.

Ingredients: Water, alcohol, Passionflower (Passiflora incarnata L.) tops 20%, honey.
