Blackcurrant Food Supplement, promotes joint function.

DESCRIPTION

In modern phytotherapy, blackcurrant leaves are used in cases of circulatory disorders during menopause, as an anti-rheumatic and for the elimination of uric acid and toxins. A blackcurrant cure can be recommended for those suffering from joint pathologies; it is also very useful in cases of colds, and in cases of gastric and intestinal disorders, as a dietary support.

It contains about 0.5% flavonoids, mainly quercetin and kempferol derivatives, myricetin and isoramnetin glycosides, sakuranetin, tannins, di- and tri-terpenes, phenolic acids and traces of essential oil. The phytocomplex of currant leaves is an effective anti-inflammatory and anti-allergic, has an intense diuretic and deeuricemic activity, therefore reduces hypertension, and has immunostimulant and antifungal properties.

Ingredients: Water, alcohol, Blackcurrant (Ribes nigrum L.) leaves 20%, honey.
