After two intense years of research and tireless effort, and with the invaluable collaboration of Dr. Elizabeth Poynor, Gynecologic Oncologist and Pelvic Surgeon, who played a key role as Senior Scientific Advisor on the Glow Botanica team, they brought to life a natural alternative to hormone replacement therapy - thus Glow Botanica was born.

DESCRIPTION

Ana Gonzalez Herrera, Founder and CEO of Glow Botanica, begins her story with her own story. She has a vivid memory of being in the boardroom with her three male partners at the company where she used to work. Ana remembers bending over due to the excruciating pain caused by the extreme symptoms of PMS.

Ana's hormonal imbalance began at age 21, when she was diagnosed with fibroids, a common but painful condition. At that same age, Ana underwent her first surgery to remove the fibroids.

At the age of 23, Ana began having very painful periods, and on her 28th birthday, she was diagnosed with endometriosis. Ana lived with pain approximately 40% - 60% of the month. At 37, she had undergone three more surgeries and joined the top 10% of women struggling with infertility.

Talking with other women and doing research, Ana realized that 80% of them went through situations related to hormonal dysfunction. That is equivalent to 3.3 billion women on Earth. There are over 150 symptoms when women go through hormonal stages in life, and there are incredibly powerful, chemical-free natural ingredients. Providing natural relief products and knowledge can be life changing for many women.

This was Ana's inspiration to create Glow Botanica.

Ana's goal is to empower you to take control of your life and provide you with natural and effective solutions that you can trust to live the best version of yourself.

Everyone needs to break this silence and the collective misconception of shame around hormones. Everyone has hormones, and they are incredibly powerful when managed correctly. Your best self is the force that keeps Ana going.
