Shark Cartilage

It is the material that makes up the skeleton of the shark and its fins; it is rich in calcium, phosphorus, proteins and complex carbohydrates, and its content of the mucopolysaccharide chondroitin sulfate stands out, which facilitates the regeneration of damaged cartilaginous tissue.

Vegetable Glucosamine

It is a product with a high concentration of glucosamine hydrochloride. The product is obtained from corn and working with GMP regulations. Vegetable glucosamine is used to maintain the ideal state of tendons, bones, ligaments and cartilage. Nutrition based on glucosamine helps maintain good flexibility of the joints and the tissue that connects the bone system.

Willow

Hippocrates, in his time, appreciated the analgesic effect of the white willow. Today we know that its bark contains salicin and that in the body it is oxidized into salicylic acid; basic raw material for analgesics such as aspirin, which was once made from white willow. White willow is antipyretic, antirheumatic, anti-inflammatory, analgesic, antibacterial and eliminates uric acid. White willow was one of the first plants to be the subject of scientific research. It is used in cases of rheumatism and arthritis, lowers fever, relieves neuralgia, headaches, colic and pain in general. Among its active ingredients, we find phenolic glycosides which are salicylic derivatives: salicin, salicortina, tremulacin, populina, fragolina; aldehydes and aromatic acids, salidroside, vanillin; salicylic and vanillic acids; the flavonoids isoquercitrin and naringin; tannins in variable amounts from 8 to 20%.
