Turmeric

Turmeric has been revealed as a prodigious plant, which acts as a general balm for our health, acting on various fronts. It has been attributed anti-inflammatory, antioxidant, choleric, digestive, carminative, hepatoprotective, lipid-lowering and liver-detoxifying virtues.

Black pepper

This is the fruit of the black pepper plant, used as a spice to flavor dishes and also for its medicinal properties. It contains Vitamin A, C, K, folate and Choline, as well as minerals such as potassium, phosphorus, magnesium and calcium. For this reason, it is considered a very important source of minerals with a high content of dietary fiber along with a moderate amount of protein and carbohydrates. The intake of black pepper is ideal to avoid diarrhea, constipation and colic since it increases the secretion of hydrochloric acid in the stomach, favoring the digestive process. It also prevents the formation of intestinal gas. The outer layer of peppercorns contributes to the breakdown of fat cells, thus helping to control weight naturally. It has expectorant properties that help you eliminate mucus and prevent asthma.
