DESCRIPTION

What is Vulvisens®?

It is a neurodermatological cream that puts an end to annoying vulvar itching; with a melting texture based on waxes and oils, which cares for the skin of the external intimate area.

The external vulvar area can suffer from dryness and dehydration of the skin, leading to uncomfortable discomfort such as itching or burning. These discomforts are very common, often cause embarrassment and can affect the quality of life of women who suffer from them.

Vulvisens®, thanks to the combination of its ingredients, provides complete care for the external intimate area of women. The continued use of Vulvisens not only moisturises the area, but also restores its natural balance by strengthening the epidermal barrier and reducing discomfort.

What is Vulvisens® used for?

Vulvisens® is used to treat dryness, itching or burning in the female intimate area. Hormonal changes caused by menstruation, pregnancy or menopause, frequent infections or exposure to irritating agents such as chlorine or synthetic underwear are some of the main factors that influence the appearance of dryness, itching or burning in the female intimate area.

Not only does it moisturise the area, making it suitable for daily intimate care, but it also restores its natural balance by strengthening the epidermal barrier and reducing discomfort.

If you suffer from dryness, dehydrated skin in the external vulvar area and/or uncomfortable discomfort such as itching or burning.

Vulvisens[®] moisturizes and helps restore natural balance by strengthening the epidermal barrier and reducing discomfort in the intimate area.

Vulvisens[®] is a concentrated and highly moisturizing cream that contains:

- A neurodermatological ingredient that acts on the nerve endings responsible for uncomfortable sensations such as itching or burning.
- Avocado oil with moisturizing properties that helps the rest of the active ingredients penetrate better.
- Prebiotics that help to recover and strengthen the natural microbiota of the intimate area.
- Rosehip and calendula extracts with regenerative and anti-inflammatory properties.

Vulvisens[®] produces an immediate feeling of comfort. In addition, its prebiotic ingredients contribute to maintaining a balanced microbiota, and the regenerative and anti-inflammatory extracts restore the barrier function of the area and improve hydration.

Vulvisens[®] can be combined with other topical products. However, if you are taking any medication, it is important to consult your gynecologist first and follow his or her recommendations.

In studies of Vulvisens[®] carried out by independent companies, under gynecological control in adult women and under pediatric control in girls:*

- 100% of participants stated that Vulvisens[®] reduces the sensation of irritation, dryness and itching, and moisturizes the skin.
- 100% of the parents of the girls who volunteered for the study thought that the cream was effective in small amounts, had an adequate texture, provided comfort and the area was more hydrated after use.
