What is the Baby Tummy Oil for?

Colic is a common problem, affecting about one in four breastfed babies. Although they are generally a temporary nuisance, they can significantly affect the well-being of the baby, causing discomfort and excessive crying.

Colic in babies is often caused by gas trapped in the baby's digestive system. To alleviate the discomfort, it is recommended to perform a gentle massage on the baby's tummy, a technique that has been recommended by the Spanish Pediatric Association.

Baby Tummy Oil is a 100% natural product that has cardamom and chamomile essential oils, two ingredients known for their digestive and calming properties. This oil is ideal for performing a gentle massage on the baby's tummy, improving blood circulation and helping to expel trapped gases.

In addition, its regular use helps prevent and improve discomfort in infants, contributing to their well-being and comfort. This oil is safe and gentle on baby's delicate skin and can be used regularly to soothe baby's discomfort.

How should the Baby Tummy Oil be used?

To massage the baby's tummy with Tummy Oil, it is recommended to warm the oil between the palms of the hands and gently massage in a clockwise direction, following a spiral from the navel outwards and ending in the baby's left leg. This movement helps release gas trapped in the intestine, which can reduce discomfort for the baby. It is important to apply gentle pressure during the massage to facilitate the
