How should Weleda Calendula Shower Gel Shampoo be used?

To wash the baby, it is advisable to apply the soap gently and rinse well from head to toe. A natural sponge can be used to cleanse the body, paying particular attention to areas in the folds of the skin. It is important to start with the neck and continue through the chest, belly, arms, genitals and legs. Then, the back should be washed without wetting the face. When washing the little head, it is essential to be careful not to get soap in the eyes. For the face, only water should be used and, if necessary, the eyes can be cleaned with saline and a sterile gauze for each eye, always from the inside out. The nose and ears should not be washed unless the baby has congestion. It is important to dry all the folds of the skin well to avoid leaving traces of moisture.
